紅葉色【MOMIJI-IRO】

紅葉色とは、晩秋の赤く色づく楓のようなあざやかな赤色を指す。「もみじ」は動詞が語源とされており、生地を染めて揉み出した色素が水中に染み出した様子を「もみづ」と表現していた。植物の色素で楓が最も美しく色づくことから、いつしか楓を「もみじ」と呼ぶようになった。また、紅葉は花札の絵柄としても有名。一緒に描かれている鹿は秋になると妻を求めて鳴く声が哀愁を帯びていることから秋の季語になった。

Autumn leaves color refers to the bright red of maple leaves that turn red in late autumn. The word "Momiji" is said to have its origin as a verb, and "Momiji" was used to describe the way the dye that was squeezed out from dyeing the fabric oozed out into the water. Because maple leaves are most beautifully colored by plant pigments, people started calling the situation "momiji". Autumn leaves are also famous as a pattern on Hanafuda cards (Japanese card game). The deer pictured together has become the seasonal word for autumn, as its cries in search of a wife are melancholic in autumn.
